Do you want to increase your scholarly output? Perhaps you would like to develop a more concrete, organized plan to work towards promotion and tenure? This session is for any faculty member who would like to approach their research production in a more organized and supported fashion. In this short session we will address the following topics:

- Individuals’ typical research trajectories
- Tools to our success; testimonies of “failures”
- Resources for forming your own research group
- The importance of peer mentoring
- Accountability systems to ensure continued production

The Office of the Provost provides generous support as well as drinks and desserts for the Brown Bag Series.
