Many studies suggest factors that might influence online learning and assessment, but most of them have not been empirically tested. Join us for a conversation with Drs. Mahenthiran and Xu, as they share the results from their study, which investigated factors that influence student satisfaction with online assessment, and overall student satisfaction with online learning.